Mission Statement

www.sbcounty.gov/sheriff

"Our Mission is to provide professional public safety services to residents and visitors of San Bernardino County so they can be safe and secure in their homes and businesses."

Word from the Sheriff

As I finish up my first year as Sheriff I want to thank the men and women of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department for all of their hard work during the year. Having such terrific people working for us makes running the Department an almost exclusively enjoyable experience.

Despite the tough economic times we're in we were able to accomplish many important things this past year. Our Technical Services Division placed Crime Mapping on our website. Today residents can access real data on crime in their neighborhood or city. I think this service will enable residents to see that our cities and towns really are pretty safe places to live.

In continuing with our goal to provide citizens with as much information as possible we have gone live with the Offender Watch Program. This provides up to date information on sex offenders residing in our neighborhoods. Once again, I don't believe this is any cause for alarm, but my belief is you as taxpayers deserve access to data compiled with your tax dollars.

During the year we made two major deployment changes in the department, both aimed at being more efficient and cost affective. Up in the desert we merged the Victor Valley and Adelanto patrol operations. Both now run out of the Adelanto Station. The former Victor Valley station will now exclusively house our desert dispatch operations.

Down in the valley we moved county operations for the west end from the Chino Hills Station to the West Foothill Station (formerly Fontana Station). This move will cut response times to communities such as San Antonio Heights.

One of my goals for the upcoming year is to increase the department's involvement in the community. We have an excellent community relations division, and I am going to make sure their philosophy and practices carries over to each patrol station. Another long term goal as your Sheriff is to increase the diversity among all ranks of the organization.

Another goal is that each station conducts "active shooter" training at one of their local high schools. I pray we never have an event such as a Columbine at any of our schools, but I want to be sure we are prepared to protect our children should anything like that occur.

In the upcoming year we as an organization will continue to strive to be efficient and cost effective with your tax dollars. As Sheriff I feel privileged and honored to lead this great organization.

SHERIFF-CORNER

Undersheriff and Assistant Sheriffs

Undersheriff Richard Beemer and Assistant Sheriffs Warren Nobles and Bill Abernathy complete the Office of the Sheriff. The Undersheriff works closely with Sheriff Hoops running the day-to-day operations of the organization. When fully staffed, the Department has over 3,600 members with a budget of $448 million.

The Undersheriff directly oversees the Civil Liabilities, Internal Affairs and Bureau of Administration divisions. Assistant Sheriff Warren Nobles' responsibility is Operations, which includes Criminal Intelligence, Specialized Operations and Patrol. Assistant Sheriff Bill Abernathy oversees Support Operations which encompasses Administrative Services (Training), Support Services (Communications, Public Affairs, and Technical Services), Legislative Liaison, Court Services and Corrections.

Rounding out the Executive Staff are Deputy Chiefs Paul Cook, James Coronado, Robert Fonzi, John McMahon, Sheree Stewart, Glen Pratt and Executive Officer John Fogerty.

The San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department is diverse and widespread operation. At 20,186 square miles, San Bernardino County is the largest in the contiguous United States. The Department provides law enforcement services through both its 14 contract cities and nine county patrol stations for over a million citizens.

Region 1

Region I consists of the valley and mountain patrol stations. Deputy Chief Paul Cook oversees the region and works with the eight captains who is each responsible for maintaining a contract city and/or county patrol operation.

Stations in the region range in size from the Department's largest contract city, Rancho Cucamonga with nearly 190 employees, down to the Twin Peaks Station in the San Bernardino Mountains with 35 personnel.

Significant changes during the year included moving west end patrol operations from the Chino Hills Station to the West Foothill Station. The move was made to better serve and shorten response times for residents of areas such as San Antonio Heights.

The desert patrol stations make up Region II and cover a vast patrol area that stretches from Needles to Adelanto to the Morongo Station in the southeast corner of the county.

For most of 2009, there were eight captains working under Deputy Chief Glen Pratt who oversees the region. In November of 2009 however, Victor Valley county patrol operations were moved to the Adelanto Station. This move will enable Region II communications to expand at the Desert Communications Center, and a captain's position will be eliminated in a cost saving measure.

In 2009, region II deputies made 13,655 arrests and took 55,135 reports. The Victorville Station led the way handling 95,926 calls for service.

Why would the Sheriff want to Contract with Our City?

California's Constitution empowers the Sheriff of each county to act as its chief law enforcement officer, a responsibility that invites a more broad-based approach to crime control. Simply put, when dealing with criminals who are not concerned with city boundaries, it is in the Sheriff's best interest to ensure communication and cooperation occurs between officers of different jurisdictions. Using the same department for police services in both city and county areas significantly increases the effectiveness of policing strategies.

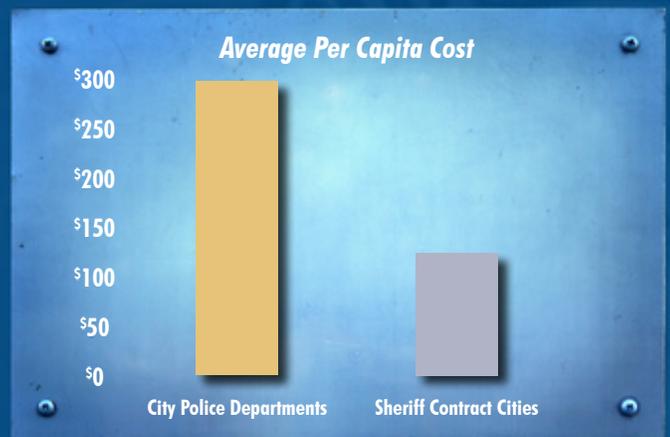

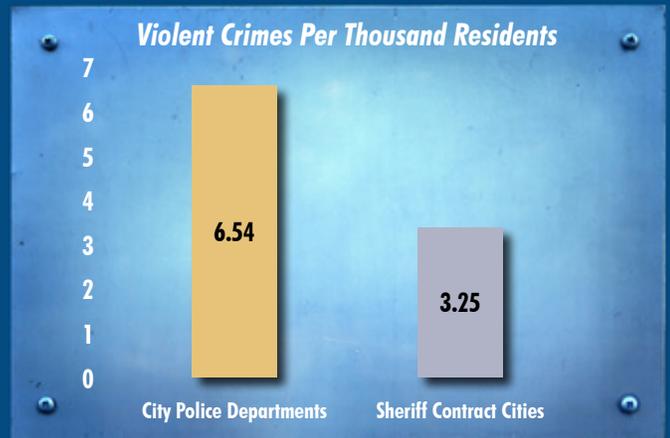

It strengthens information links between officers and reduces the likelihood of offender displacement, a common problem when different agencies work in neighboring jurisdictions. In the Sheriff's view, safer cities mean a safer county for all of its citizens. And, while some believe the Sheriff relies on contract revenue to enhance his own organization's service levels, the California Government Code prohibits Sheriff's Departments from recovering anything other than the actual costs associated with the contractual services provided.

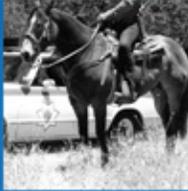

Is Our City Safe When We Contract?

The Sheriff's Department has been in the contract law enforcement business since 1962, when the City of Victorville selected it to be their police department shortly after incorporation. Since then, thirteen other cities in San Bernardino County have chosen to rely on the established patrol and investigative services of the Sheriff for police protection. Two of them disbanded their own police department in favor of lower cost and what has proven to be a reliably reduced incidence of crime when compared to other jurisdictions.

Studies have consistently shown a significant difference in serious crime when Sheriff's contract cities are compared to those with their own police departments. On a per capita basis, residents of non-contracting cities are twice as likely to be victimized by Violent Crime. This includes a homicide rate that is 65% higher; a forcible rape rate that is 44% higher; a robbery rate that is 70% higher; and, an aggravated assault rate that is 61% higher than cities protected by the Sheriff. When it comes to Property Crimes the gap remains, with a burglary rate that is 36% higher; an auto theft rate that is 62% higher; and, an overall theft rate that is 46% higher for persons living in cities with their own police departments.

What about the Benefits of Local Control?

It is only natural for city officials to want influence over department policy, enforcement priorities, and the selection and promotion of police officers. But with this control comes the assumption of significant civil liability, collective bargaining processes, and the ongoing recruitment, training, and disciplinary action associated with personnel services obligations, not to mention the need to respond to all media requests for information. The Sheriff's Department always assumes these responsibilities when handling police services for a community, and works to regularly assign the same employees to contract stations so they can develop pride and a sense of ownership in the city they serve. In fact, many of our officers reside in and/or grew up in the town they're assigned to, and each is part of the same labor pool every police department in the region chooses its candidates from. When it comes to executive accountability, city leaders can be assured the Sheriff is committed to establishing and maintaining a positive working relationship. Command officers routinely attend all council meetings, city staff meetings, and community events. Is not uncommon for sheriff personnel of all ranks to be involved with the many civic groups found in each community.

So, What do We Get For Our Dollar?

Cities that contract with the Sheriff for police protection enjoy a defined level of police service that is responsive to traditional calls-for-service needs and other public safety issues that are unique to each community. Officers are also fully-trained, meaning cities do not have to absorb costs associated with sending new-hires to a training academy...and our Training Center is routinely recognized as one of the best in the State.

The extensive support that officers receive from the Sheriff's specialized units also help many municipalities keep their heads above water when critical incidents occur in their jurisdictions. With Homicide, Crimes Against Children, Bomb/Arson, Narcotics, SWAT, CSI, Crime Impact, Gang, Aviation, and High-Tech Crimes details enjoying the highest of credibility within the profession, cities are assured experienced, specialized assistance that is built into the cost of the contract. And when it comes to crime prevention, officers enjoy the support of nationally recognized programs like Operation CleanSWEEP for safer schools, and our Crime-Free Multi-Housing Program for apartment complexes, which often drain limited resources with repeated police responses. In short, contract personnel come fully-qualified and fully-supported to do their job!

But it is the other established support services of the Sheriff's Department that help keep overall costs down for contracting cities due to economy of scale, particularly when it comes to Command Staff, Human Resources, Communications, Technical Services, Grant Administration, Internal Affairs, Public Affairs, Training, Fleet Management, Criminal Records, and Volunteer Forces. The per capita cost for cities providing their own police departments is consistently double that of the Sheriff's Department. Combine this cost with the lower crime rate and the value of a city's public safety dollar is considerably enhanced.

West Valley Detention Center

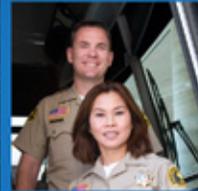

The West Valley Detention Center opened its doors in 1991 and is the flagship of the department's correctional facilities. Captain Robert Wickum is the commander of the jail which has a capacity of 3,284. At over 50,000 bookings per year WVDC is one of the largest jails in the state.

This report marks the 18th anniversary of the West Valley Detention Center. After 18 years of "round the clock" operation, the facility maintains its status as one of the premier law enforcement facilities in the nation.

With 61,000 bookings and 67,000 releases per year, the staff at West Valley Detention Center has plenty of activity to keep them busy. Inmates receive food, clothing, medical care, recreation and religious services in a 24-hour-a-day operation that never stops. The Sheriff's Food Service Division served over 3,500,000 meals per year at the jail.

Movement of inmates occurs constantly, and maintaining a secure and safe environment is the primary objective of our dedicated staff. The facility boasts an authorized staff of 612 professionals, many of whom are general employees. Maintenance crews, medical staff, culinary workers, Sheriff's Custody Specialists and Assistants, Training Specialists, and a variety of support staff positions all work together to keep the operation going rain or shine. Video arraignment is available for inmates whose cases are being heard in Rancho Cucamonga, Victorville, Chino or the Central Court House. A full production video lab is located on-site, and many of our training films are made "in house."

West Valley Detention Center is the first stop for deputies who have embarked on a law-enforcement career with the San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department. Once they have graduated from the Academy, they are assigned here for their initial training. The facility maintains a full-time training staff who oversees all phases of the new hire's training and development.

Pre-sentenced inmates dominate the population at West Valley Detention Center. With the exception of sentenced inmate workers and some Federal inmates, most of our "guests" are awaiting the resolution of their criminal cases. West Valley Detention Center houses maximum- security inmates awaiting capital case trials as well as pre-sentenced medium security inmates awaiting trial on lesser crimes.

We are very proud of our medical staff and our programs for mentally ill offenders. The facility's programs are the envy of other law enforcement agencies throughout the state. We employ specially-trained deputies to work in our Sheltered Housing Unit, which houses our medically and mentally challenged inmates.

The staff at West Valley Detention Center remains committed to providing premier service to the many agencies and communities we serve throughout San Bernardino County.

Coroner Division

Back in 2005, the Coroner's Department merged with the Sheriff's Department and Brian McCormick became the answer to the trivia question, "Who was the last San Bernardino County Coroner?" From that year forward, the Sheriff became "Sheriff-Coroner." With the merger, a captain was appointed commander of the Coroner Division and 33 new employees joined the Department.

A few decades ago, before the current facility was built in 1988, autopsies were performed in the local area mortuaries and later, at the San Bernardino County Medical Center. The pathologist would take his bag of instruments and perform the autopsy in the mortuary. However, autopsies are not the only thing happening at the Coroner's Division, and not everyone who dies has an autopsy performed on he or she.

The Coroner's Division has Deputy Coroner Investigators who are tasked with investigating the cause and manner of death for those who die in San Bernardino County. Not every person who dies requires investigation. If individuals have been under medical care and/or there is a "natural" death determination, they do not come to the Coroner's facility, but go directly to the mortuary the family has chosen.

A Deputy Coroner Investigator will be called to the scene of homicides, fatal traffic collisions and any other place where an unexplained death has transpired -- even in the middle of the desert to retrieve bones of the deceased. The investigator will take pictures and examine the body. These investigators make family notification and document the facts of the death.

In addition to three Board-Certified Forensic Pathologists, our staff includes: an Anthropologist, an Odontologist, Deputy Coroner Investigators, Autopsy Assistants, Sheriff's Service Specialists, clerical staff, and an Indigent Burial Specialist. The Sheriff's Coroner Volunteer Unit is also an invaluable addition to the Division.

The deceased and their family members are treated with the utmost care and consideration. The job of the Coroner Division is to take care of the citizens of San Bernardino County at a time when they are at their most vulnerable.

Scientific Investigations Division

The Scientific Investigations Division mission is to provide forensic support (criminalistics, identification and crime scene investigation) to both Sheriff's stations and divisions and outside agencies. SID is also home to Sheriff's Central Property/Evidence unit and the photography Laboratory.

In 2005, approximately 8,000 analyses were done in an average of four days after submission. These same analysts are also responsible for maintaining the breath alcohol instruments used by officers throughout the County. This year about 4,500 subjects were tested. The analysts have also trained nearly 1,700 peace officers in the use of breath alcohol instruments in the past two years.

During the 1990s, there were a significantly high number of clandestine lab investigations (nearly 700 per year). This number has dwindled to 59 in 2005. Clandestine laboratories range from producing small personal use amounts, manufactured in kitchens and garages, to large-scale, sophisticated, well-organized operations capable of turning out multi-point quantities. Criminalists respond to these scenes to collect samples and process the crime scenes. After analyzing the chemical samples, it has been found that over 95% of these investigations have involved the synthesis of methamphetamine from ephedrine or pseudoephedrine.

SID maintains a firearms unit with the images of fired cartridge cases, allowing an examiner to compare evidence samples submitted to SID's lab against samples submitted to other laboratories throughout the United States. This system automatically searches all stored images for matching or similar minutia against every new image being entered into the data bank. The system also allowed a technician to enter images into the computer from locations outside the actual laboratory through the use of a portable device called an RBI (Rapid Brass Identification).

CSI personnel responded to over 450 requests for service during the calendar year 2005. About 55% of the requests were to unincorporated Sheriff's jurisdictions, 35% to contract cities and the remaining 10 % to other than Sheriff's jurisdictions. An additional duty for CSI is the technical processing of items submitted for latent fingerprinting by stations, divisions and outside agencies. These items range in size from small bindles of narcotics to Peterbilt-18-wheelers. In 2005, CSI processed from 6,700 items of evidence representing 1,440 actual cases.

Active Shooter Training

When you mention the words “active shooter” most people think of the tragedy at Columbine High School. The shooting on April 20, 1999, resulted in the death of 12 students and a teacher and provoked changes in law enforcement tactics across the country. After Columbine, studies were conducted and researchers concluded that the faster a shooter is confronted, the higher the probability that the event will be resolved with a minimal loss of life.

Stations throughout the department annually conduct active shooter training. Instead of being taught to wait for the arrival of a SWAT team, deputies are trained to take immediate action to end the threat. The training consists of deputies, school administrators, and school security dealing with role-players portraying armed gunmen on campus. The training is a learning experience designed to benefit all parties involved should an actual event occur.

Additionally, the Department’s Operation CleanSWEEP regularly conducts security assessments of school campuses throughout the county. The assessments are designed to test and document deficiencies in not just the physical layout of a campus, but in security procedures as well.

The San Bernardino County Sheriff’s Department is committed to ensuring school campuses are a safe environment for our children.

SWAT

The Specialized Enforcement Division is home to the Department's Specialized Weapons and Tactics Team (SWAT). Members of the Crime Impact Team and Gang Enforcement teams come together to train regularly and respond to events such as barricaded suspects.

SWAT operators train a minimum of 36 hours a month to include: marksmanship skills; rappelling from buildings, cliffs and helicopters; helicopter insertion skills; and stealth and hostage rescue tactics. SWAT team members possess specialty skills in explosive entries and entries using night vision equipment. The National Tactical Officers Association in the Summer 2000 issue of The Tactical Edge, recognized San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department's SWAT team as one of the premier teams in the country. All specialty skills derived from SWAT are beneficial to members during their daily duties, which frequently bring team members in contact with violent and/or armed suspects.

On August 28, 2009, a large crowd of deputies, friends and family gathered in the rotunda of the San Bernardino County Government Center to remember the legend that is Frank Marion Pribble. The official purpose for the gathering was the dedication of a portion of the Interstate 10 freeway to Frank's memory. To that end, San Bernardino County Sheriff Rod Hoops emceed the event and Undersheriff Rich Beemer told the story of Frank and his untimely death. Assemblymember Wilmer Amina Carter and Senator Gloria Negrete McLeod spoke briefly, having co-authored the resolution which designated the three-mile segment of Route 10 in his honor.

Frank's death has never been forgotten by his many friends and partners. On Sunday evening, July 6, 1975, Deputy Frank Pribble was assigned a cover shift in the unincorporated area of Fontana. In those days Fontana was a rough and tumble, blue-collar, steel worker town. There were Hells Angels and other bikers and it was well known as the toughest beat in the Sheriff's Department. None of this troubled Frank Pribble; a large man of 6'5 and well over 300 lbs. He was known for his sense of humor and superhuman strength. Legend was, Frank could lift a patrol car off the ground with one hand and bend the steering wheel of his unit into the shape of a "U" so no one else would drive it. He was looked up to throughout the department as an icon and many credited him as the inspiration for the department's unofficial motto, "one riot, one deputy."

The brakes failed on Deputy Bill Brown's patrol car that night and Frank returned to the station to "double up" with Bill. Watch commander John Futscher asked the two deputies to check the rest area on I-10 for a suspect wanted in an earlier drive-by shooting.

The suspect, Virgil Scott, was driving a yellow 1965 Ford 1½ ton flat bed truck with a chassis-mounted camper. Scott had returned from a weekend at the Colorado River and confronted his estranged wife, Diane. Virgil took several guns from the house, broke out some windows, and fired several shots into a neighboring residence as he drove off.

When Frank and Bill arrived at the rest area, they drove through the area reserved for trucks and spotted the suspects vehicle parked near several motor homes. Bill notified dispatch and requested backup and the helicopter. Frank parked at an angle behind the truck on the right side and both officers began walking to the truck. Bill went to the rear of the camper and attempted to look inside while Frank walked toward the door of the camper. As Bill looked around the back of the truck, he saw the barrel of a rifle come out the camper's window a few feet behind Frank. Bill shouted at Frank who had his back turned. When Frank turned his head toward Bill, a shot rang out and Frank fell onto the hood of the truck before falling to his knees.

It was 8:21 p.m. when Bill broadcast the 999, officer down. Edith Cain heard the shots from inside her motor home and stepped outside and saw Frank lying on the asphalt parking lot. Frank looked up at her and told her "Get out of the way. I don't want you people to get hurt." His side arm was still in his holster.

Sheriff's deputies, California Highway Patrol officers and regional agencies began to converge on the scene. With the assistance of a CHP officer, Bill forced entry into the camper and found Scott lying in a bunk. His single shot had found the mark and struck Scott on the left side of his body penetrating his liver, aorta and left kidney.

The Sheriff's helicopter with pilot Don Belter at the controls and observer Jim Benson landed at the rest area within minutes. Seeing the gravity of Frank's wounds, they decided to transport him to the nearest hospital without waiting for the ambulance. A number of officers quickly carried Frank to the waiting helicopter and managed to lay him across the rear floorboard. Frank was so large however, that they were unable to close the door since Frank's legs dangled outside the cockpit. Because they didn't want the door to slam on Frank's legs throughout the flight, Jim Benson decided to stand outside the ship on the skids and hold the door open while they flew to Kaiser Hospital in Fontana. With that, the helicopter at full throttle, managed to lift off from the rest area with Jim Benson standing outside the cockpit against the buffeting windblast and cradling Frank's legs between his.

In 1975, Kaiser Hospital did not have a helipad on site. Don Belter radioed ahead and told them he would be landing in the ambulance entrance and to clear the area. Within a few minutes, Belter skillfully landed the helicopter between the trees and within a few feet of the emergency room. Doctors and nurses were waiting and rushed Frank into surgery.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Pribble died in surgery at 9:09 p.m. He was 37 years old. Frank's death had a profound effect on many in the department. He was seen as invincible and his dying caused his co-workers to ponder their own mortality.

After the ceremony, many of Frank's former co-workers signed the back of the freeway dedication sign which Caltrans had set up in the rotunda. Frank's widow Faye and son Matt greeted many old friends and were surprised by one visitor, Virgil Scott's widow Diane. Faye greeted Diane with dignity and grace which would have, no doubt, made Frank as proud as all of us.
