

The San Bernardino County Reentry Collaborative (SBCRC) is a partnership of agencies, organizations and individuals committed to making communities safer through the successful reentry and long-term success of formerly incarcerated inmates.

To ensure every aspect of the reentry process is addressed, SBCRC is comprised of eight committees:

- Public safety
- Health/human services
- Faith-based community organizations
- Education
- Employment
- Research and evaluation
- Housing
- Outreach and sustainability

Stakeholders provide solutions to address the immediate need to diminish criminal behavior and hold offenders accountable, while lessening the impact of criminal behavior on victims in the community, which results in improved long term public safety.
